By Rosanna Ramirez

Hi everyone, it's me again! You never realize just how much stuff is going on until you start looking, and I will honestly say that there are a lot of events going on here in our area! I have been meeting a lot of great people and talking to them about the magazine, it's purpose and new events. The whole reason for the magazine is just to let everyone know what is going on. Simply that.

The website that goes with the magazine is updated frequently and events can be submitted by email or via facebook (<http://www.ncoeventsmagazine.com>).

Please email me to let me know if you have any ideas of stuff you would like to see in the magazine.

Thank You & God Bless.

CONTRIBUTORS

– Juan Ramirez is also known as Cyberlobo and is the writer of the column “The Penguins Cave”. He is well known for constantly tinkering with all types of electronic gadgets and everything Linux. He enjoys networking and attending local Linux User Group meetings.

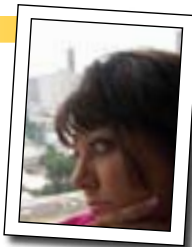

– Ann Bowling is a mother of four and a grandmother to eleven and great-grandmother to ten. She is an avid reader of the good book (Bible) and the strong moral center of her family (she keeps us all in line!) Ann enjoys making specialty bluejean purses, reading and bargain hunting.

– Tim Busbey has over 14 years of newspaper reporting, editing, copywriting, and management experience and has won many national awards for editorial publications and headlines. After his local tenure in newspaper publishing, he proceeded to advance his experience in copywriting and social media for premier companies in the Cleveland area. Tim currently owns Addison's Compass

Public Relations with Erin Al-Mehairi, his finance, with whom he shares a combined 5 children. He is currently writing his first novel tentatively called “The Truth.”

– Erin Al-Mehairi has 12 years experience in public relations, marketing, direct advertising, event planning and writing. After seven years in healthcare marketing and PR, Erin now owns Addison's Compass Public Relations with Tim Busbey. Always being very involved in the Ashland community she is on numerous active boards and committees. She was awarded the Ashland County Women of Achievement Award. Erin is an avid bookworm and blogger, and is currently in the process of writing her first children's book series.

Are you Consuming Info like a Big Batch of Greasy French Fries?

by Erin Al-Mehairi, Owner,
Addison's Compass Public Relations

There is no denying that we are a society of consumption. In America, we consume well over $100 billion of fast food each year, 156 pounds of added sugar, almost 600 cans of pop per person on average, and 375 million gallons of gas per day. We consume things quickly, leaving no second to spare.

Just as we consume fast food in our car on the way to our next scheduled appointment, we also consume information at what seems like the speed of light. We consume articles online via our smart phones and check out breaking news on Twitter before it even gets to the nightly news or before we can turn on CNN. In a matter of minutes, we read this breaking news, check our email, respond to a text message, scroll through our Facebook newsfeed, and schedule a meeting in our calendar.

As social networking and the use of social media has developed, our skills sometimes haven't been able to catch up. We have more and more friends and followers, as well as fan pages, to view information on. We scroll and scroll through the feeds, consuming as much information as we can. We begin to read it as if it were a book, forgetting the entire human element that is so integrated into the success use of it. That's right, we forget that most of the feeds are written by people in our lives who have taken a minute out of their time to inform us about their lives, recommend a product, or share a link with great information. We forget it is not just a computer, and then we forget to respond.

The premise of social networking is just that -- "being social with other people (social) in order to get to know them, their lives, their charities, their services and connect and support one another (networking)." Keeping that in mind, that means that we shouldn't just scroll and read without ever offering back a word of encouragement, recommendation, dialogue, or testimonial. We should take the time on product or business fan pages to say what we like and what we don't like (just make sure it is constructive criticism) and use it as a platform to connect with brands and businesses we like. We should be an active player in the process, not just consumers who throw away information like we throw away Big Mac wrappers.

Here are a few tips to assist you with your interpersonal skills on social media:

1. Respond to people's comments. Whether on your own personal page, a fan page or to a tweet, please respond to the comments that people take the time to make. For businesses, respond whether they are positive or negative. Responding to negative comments can turn the situation into a positive because it shows you care about your customer and finding solutions to their issues. Don't ever delete their comments or block your wall so customers can't write to you.

2. Start conversations. Ask your friends or fans questions about themselves or about something that relates to your brand or product. Initiate dialogue with them and don't be shy. Being open and aware makes you trustworthy. On Twitter, start chats and use a #hashtag to talk about subjects that interest you.

3. Ask a question or post a poll. Facebook just made it even more fun and engaging to do this. On a personal level, it is fun to ask your friend's favorite 80's movie and from a business perspective, you may be able to garner the interests of your clients to help you better sell your services or products. Either way, it engages your audience. There are many more keys and skills to utilizing social media networking and marketing in a more successful manner. Seek out information and remember to not just consume it, but put it to use.

We'd love to have you initiate conversations with us: www.facebook.com/addisonscompass, www.twitter.com/ErinAlMehairi, www.twitter.com/tbusbey, www.linkedin.com/in/erinalmehairi, www.linkedin.com/in/timbusbey.

is Memorial Day all about?

Memorial Day, which falls on the last Monday of May, honors the men and women who died while serving in the American military. Originally known as Decoration Day, it originated in the years following the Civil War and became an official federal holiday in 1971. Many Americans observe Memorial Day by visiting cemeteries or memorials, holding family gatherings and participating in parades. Unofficially, at least, it marks the beginning of summer.

Memorial Day, is a day of remembrance for those who have died in our nation's service. There are many stories as to its actual beginnings, with over two dozen cities and towns laying claim to being the birthplace of Memorial Day. There is also evidence that organized women's groups in the South were decorating graves before the end of the Civil War. While Waterloo N.Y. was officially declared the birthplace of Memorial Day by President Lyndon Johnson in May 1966, it's difficult to prove conclusively the origins of the day. It is more likely that it had many separate beginnings; each of those towns and every planned or spontaneous gathering of people to honor the war dead in the 1860's tapped into the general human need to honor our dead, each contributed honorably to the growing movement that culminated in Gen Logan giving his official proclamation in 1868. It is not important who was the very first, what is important is that Memorial Day is about coming together to honor those who gave their all.

Memorial Day was officially proclaimed on 5 May 1868 by General John Logan, national commander of the Grand Army of the Republic, in his General Order No. 11, and was first observed on 30 May 1868, when flowers were placed on the graves of Union and Confederate soldiers at Arlington National Cemetery. The first state to officially recognize the holiday was New York in 1873. By 1890 it was recognized by all of the northern states. The South refused to acknowledge the day, honoring their dead on separate days until after World War I (when the holiday changed from honoring just those who died fighting in the Civil War to honoring Americans who died fighting in any war). It is now celebrated in almost every State on the last Monday in May, though several southern states have an additional separate day for honoring the Confederate war dead: January 19 in Texas, April 26 in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, and Mississippi; May 10 in South Carolina; and June 3 in Louisiana and Tennessee. Remember, many of our soldiers, people just like you and I, gave their all, their lives so that we may keep our freedoms.

Thank You Veterans!

We cherish too, the Poppy red That grows on fields where valor led, it seems to signal to the skies That blood of heroes never dies.

Online Stuff

By Heather L. Koppes

Have you visited www.ncoeventsmagazine.com yet? Here are some great reasons to check out the web site to complement your print edition of North Central Ohio Events Magazine.

When you're looking for the next print edition of North Central Ohio Events Magazine, be sure to check out the "where" link to find a convenient location to pick up a copy. The list is updated whenever new locations are added. Also, you can find out when the next print edition is available on the home page.

The "events" page is updated frequently in-between printings. Within many of the event listings are clickable links to accompanying web sites for more information. Be sure to bookmark the events page and visit it often when you're looking for something to do around the north central Ohio region. Also when you visit the "events" link be sure to check out the "Weekly Events" page where you'll find a lengthy list of ongoing activities in which to participate.

Throughout the web site you'll find various clickable ads for products and services you may need. In addition, under the "links" and "attraction" tabs you'll find listings to further explore useful resources and places to visit around the area. Also, at the bottom of the home page you'll find links to a list of local service clubs and a list of local bands.

Within the "issues" link, you'll find downloadable PDF versions of the current edition and a few of the back issues as well. With the new Adobe Reader X, you can highlight events and add comments on the side. Also you'll find that you can click the links in the advertisements to take you directly to the listed web site.

The "photos" link takes you to fun photos of various local events. In the near future you'll be able to submit photos from events you've attended. As you can see, the web site provides a great extension to the print edition. Visit it often!

The Penguins Cave

BY CYBER LOBO

LINUX - ANDROID

Welcome back my dear readers, here I am again geeking around with the Linux stuff, and you can geek around too this summer, with the top Five2011 Linux Distros, according to our friends at PC World in their article of the Top 10.

1. Ubuntu

Yes, Ubuntu has become the most popular distros, more than 2,200 hits per day on the Distrowatch site alone, compared with some 1,400 for Fedora, the No. 2 contender. Version 10.10 of Ubuntu -- also known as Maverick Meerkat -- Ubuntu is available in various remixes and spin-off sub-distros targeted at specific niches, such as Kubuntu, Xubuntu and Lubuntu.

2. Fedora

Fedora is the free version of Red Hat, whose RHEL (Red Hat Enterprise Linux) has been a commercial product since 2003. Because of that close connection, Fedora is particularly strong on enterprise features.

3. Linux Mint

Launched in 2006. The operating system adds to Ubuntu with its own, distinct desktop theme and a different set of applications; also unique to the distro are a variety of graphical tools for enhanced usability, such as mintDesktop for configuring the desktop environment, mintInstall for easier software installation and mintMenu for easier navigation.

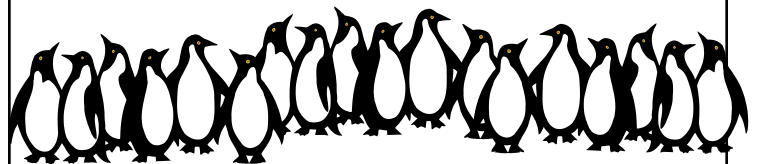

4. openSUSE

With some 1,200 hits per day on Distrowatch, openSUSE holds the No. 4 spot in popularity on the site and is also the foundation for Novell's SUSE Linux Enterprise Desktop and SUSE Linux Enterprise Server products.

5. PCLinuxOS

PCLinuxOS uses the KDE desktop environment and is essentially a lighter-weight version of Mandriva. With good support for graphics drivers, browser plugins and media codecs, PCLinuxOS can be a good choice for beginners.

Until next time dear readers, again to be geeking around!

Local Linux Users Group

NCOLUG (North Central Ohio Linux Users Group) meets to discuss our common interests: Meetings are the 1st Thursday of the month at 6:30 p.m. at NCSC (Fallarius Building), Entrepreneur Center, in Mansfield.

Helpful Household Stuff!

Vinegar - The Miracle Ingredient

I have been doing a little online research to look for some interesting facts about regular household stuff. As I have aged (my thoughts on aging have changed) I am trying to do the more natural remedies. As I was looking, I noticed that vinegar kept coming up a lot. So here is a few of the uses that I have found for vinegar. Also, I eat pickles more often now to help control the acid levels in my stomach. :)

- Used as a hair rinse, vinegar neutralizes the alkali left by shampoos.
- A quarter cup in a quart of water makes a good window cleaner. When you use vinegar in your water to wash windows, dry with newspapers. Also keeps them frost free!
- Fabric softener and static cling reducer — use as you would liquid fabric softener.
- Chewing gum dissolver — saturate the area with vinegar. If the vinegar is heated, it will work faster.
- Stain remover — for stains caused by grass, coffee, tea, fruits and berries. Soak clothing in full strength vinegar.
- Corn and callus remover — soak a cloth in vinegar, and tape it over the callus or corn overnight.
- Remedy for age spots — Mix equal parts of onion juice and vinegar and use it daily on age spots. This will take a few weeks to work, just like its expensive relative from the store.
- Use white vinegar straight from the bottle to pour on the weeds and grasses that come up through the pavement. Just pour on and let set a couple of days and the weeds will die back and wont reappear for several months.
- If you have a septic tank, use vinegar instead of harsh chemicals to clean the toilet bowl. Let it set overnight if you can; it will help keep germs down.
- It's an ongoing battle as to whether vinegar can help you lose weight, but the ones who say it will, say to drink a glass of water before each meal in which you've added a tablespoon of vinegar and a tablespoon of honey.

The Recipe Place

Apple Butter Stack Cake

INGREDIENTS:

1 box of yellow cake mix. I prefer the pudding in the mix kind. (you will also need the ingredients called for on the box. eggs, oil etc.)

One to Four 8 inch round non-stick cake pans.

(The more pans you have the faster you can make this cake)

1 jar of apple butter
cinnamon, ground cloves, nutmeg, sugar (or Stevia sweetner)
Can of Non-Stick spray

DIRECTIONS

Put apple butter in a bowl. Add sugar (or stevia if you are diabetic), cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves till you love the taste. Doesn't take much of each. Apple Butter is good by itself. But the added spices give it an extra something. Set the bowl aside till you need it. Mix your cake mix in a bowl per box directions and set the oven temp to the box directions. Lightly spray the cake pans with non-stick spray. No flour please. Pour exactly 3/4 of a cup of cake mix into each pan. Scrape the measuring cup to ensure an equal amount in each pan. Shake and bang the pan on your hand to spread the mix out evenly in the pan. Pop the pans in the oven and in about 10 minutes they will be springy in the middle and lightly brown on the edge, keep a close eye on them while baking. You will end up with about 6 cake layers about 1/2 to 3/4 inch thick each. This is the secret to the cake, thin moist layers. When a layer is done baking remove it from the oven and let it sit a few minutes in the pan then while it is still warm place a paper towel on your palm and turn the pan over and slowly shake it and the thin layer will fall on your hand then place it on something to cool. Do this to all the layers. If you shake it right your layers won't break.

Place a cooled cake layer in the middle of a plate. Grab your bowl of apple butter and spread a thin layer onto the cake. Place another cake layer on top of the first and put on more apple butter. Repeat this till all layers are stacked. Now take the remainder of the apple butter and spread it on the top and side of the cake.

"An applebutter or dried apple stack cake is as individual as the person who makes it and there is no limitations on the creativity possible for this recipe. It is based on an old Appalachian recipe which was considered very sweet for it's time, but not by today's standards and is a nice respite from the overly sweet desserts of today's world."

In the 1800s, John Chapman became well-known for planting apple trees in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and beyond, earning him the name "Johnny Appleseed."

There are 7,500 varieties of apples worldwide.

Annie's Corner - By Ann Bowling

To keep your balance in a crooked world.
Keep your eyes on Jesus.

Ecclesiastes Chapter 3

1 - There is an appointed time for everything, and a time for every affair under the heavens.

2 - A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to uproot the plant.

3 - A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to tear down, and a time to build.

4 - A time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance.

5 - A time to scatter stones, and a time to gather them; a time to embrace, and a time to be far from embraces.

6 - A time to seek, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away.

7 - A time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to be silent, and a time to speak.

8 - A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace.

My Dad quoted this when he came out of a coma before he went to be with the Lord (John E Cline). In memory of him from all of us who love him dearly. He looked up and the Last word he spoke was Jesus as he left.
