By Rosanna Ramirez

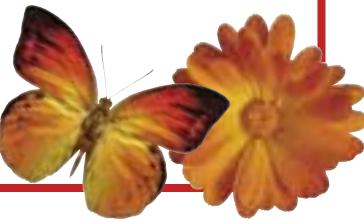

I have been waiting for this summer for two years now and am glad to see that it is finally here. All of the hard work that all of the committees & volunteers for the Bicentennial will finally be seen and enjoyed by everyone in Mansfield. There are so many events going on that you might have trouble trying to decide what to do first.

There will be free music, all kinds of games for the kids, magicians, balloons, cake, rededications, speeches, guests from other towns and other countries, film festivals, re-enactments.

It's time to shake off the cold of winter, put on some shorts and go enjoy the warmer weather. Now if the cool nights would just go away. Grab some of your kids, grandkids, spouse, relative or friend and just go. Get some sunshine and have a blast. I will see you out there.

Thank You & God Bless.

No Prep Veneers

By: Craig C. Callen, D.D.S.

One of the hot topics in dentistry today is "No Prep Veneers." Why, because a national dental company has done a great job of marketing this service to the general public. It used to be that a new product or service for dentistry was introduced to the dentist first. The product was put through rigorous independent testing, evaluated and if it looked good the dentists would start trying the new product and presenting it to their patients. Now companies have found that if they market directly to the patient, the patient will ask for the product putting pressure on the professional to deliver. "No Prep Veneers" under a trade name I can't mention is a perfect example of this. What are no prep veneers? Thin layers of porcelain facings, sort of like fake fingernails that are bonded to your teeth to change the color, shape, or position of the teeth. We have done this successfully for years with minimal preparations on teeth. Do no prep veneers work? The simple answer is "Yes, in limited circumstances."

Unfortunately, in many cases they make the teeth appear too bulky, kind of like chicklets. When you take the course to show you their technique, the first thing they do is show you how they want the teeth prepared for the best result. So their no prep veneers are really minimal prep.

For the best results and an improved, but natural smile minimal reshaping of the teeth is usually required. Not only will the teeth be contoured better, but it will be healthier as the final result is not a trap for food and bacteria. The veneers are actually stronger when there is minimal reduction of the tooth as the veneer can be a little thicker, particularly at the junction of the tooth and the veneer. One of the problems with no prep veneers is a weak edge where the veneer and tooth meet.

Rather than taking all the tools away from your dentist to improve your smile, don't lock them into a specific technique, rather ask them what procedure would give you the best final result for a beautiful new smile.

Do no
prep veneers
work?

Here is an example of two central incisor teeth that were worn and had what we call a "reverse" smile line. With minimal preparation two veneers were able to properly correct the problem.

Memorial Day

Following the end of the Civil War, many communities set aside a day to mark the end of the war or as a memorial to those who had died. These observances eventually coalesced around Decoration Day, honoring the Union dead, and the several Confederate Memorial Days.

According to Professor David Blight of the Yale University History Department, the first memorial day was observed in 1865 by liberated slaves at the historic race track in Charleston. The site was a former Confederate prison camp as well as a mass grave for Union soldiers who had died while captive. A parade with thousands of freed blacks and Union soldiers was followed by patriotic singing and a picnic.

The official birthplace of Memorial Day is Waterloo, New York. The village was credited with being the birthplace because it observed the day on May 5, 1866, and each year thereafter. It is likely that the friendship of General John Murray, a distinguished citizen of Waterloo, and General John A. Logan, who led the call for the day to be observed each year, helped spread the event nationwide and was a key factor in its growth.

General Logan had been impressed by the way the South honored their dead with a special day and decided the Union needed a similar day. Reportedly, Logan intended to issue an order designating a day for decorating the grave of every soldier in the land, and if he could he would have made it a holiday.

Logan had been the principal speaker in a citywide memorial observation on April 29, 1866, at a cemetery in Carbondale, Illinois, an event that likely gave him the idea to make it a national holiday. On May 5, 1868, in his capacity as commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, a veterans' organization, Logan issued a proclamation that "Decoration Day" be observed nationwide. It was observed for the first time on May 30 of the same year; the date was chosen because it was not the anniversary of a battle. The tombs of fallen Union soldiers were decorated in remembrance of this day.

Mansfield Post Office

Our Beginning and a Continual Commitment to Service

Benjamin Franklin was appointed as the first Postmaster General and served until November 1776. He developed the basis of a system and service that has greatly served the American public. Two of Mansfield's first letter carriers were named Facer and Hatfield. Their routes ran from Cleveland and Sandusky to Mansfield, Mount Vernon and on to Columbus. During the War of 1812, they would walk their routes for fear of their horses being heard by the Indians.

Along with the personal mail, the carrier would bring a two- to three-week old newspaper to be read by the Justice of the Peace at the "white oak log" where the Mansfield townsfolk would congregate on the expected mail day. A need arose for a place where the mail could be safely kept until called for and where carriers could rest before starting for their next point of delivery.

July 1, 1811 marks the day of Winn Winship's selection as Mansfield's first Postmaster. His home became the first Post Office in Mansfield and Richland County, establishing the custom of the Postmaster using his place of residence or business as the Post Office.

Mr. Robert McCombs succeeded Winship as Postmaster in 1820. His store at the southwest corner of Main and Third became the Post Office until 1829 when Hugh McFall became Postmaster. His office was on the northwest corner of Main and Third. During the following years, there was a series of relocations of the Post Office as new Postmasters were appointed.

From horseback to stagecoach in the mid 1800's, the transportation of mail to and from Richland County continued to improve. This system was short-lived with the advent of the railroad in Mansfield in 1846 which played an important part in moving the mail for the next century. In 1889, the Mansfield Post Office employed 16 people and served a population of approximately 13,700.

The first local rural delivery was initiated in 1897 when Mr. Justin Osbun headed his horse and buggy north of the city. Rural Free Delivery (RFD) was a great convenience and a welcome sight to the people outside the city. People no longer had to make the trip to town for their mail.

Around 1946, there were six rural routes serving about 3,500 deliveries. These routes have now grown to 18 rural and 61 city routes making about 45,000 deliveries in the Mansfield area. In addition, the Mansfield post office processes mail for a seven county area, serving a population in excess of 457,000. Air Mail Service began on May 19, 1938, when a low-wing monoplane belonging to Henry E. Cunningham, a regular Mansfield carrier, was commissioned by the government to institute the first Air Mail Service between Mansfield and Cleveland.

Mansfield's Post Office has grown from the only frame house in the city in 1811 to its current multi-million dollar complex located at 200 N. Diamond St. The facility occupies 12 acres of land and opened in 1972. The structure also includes an attached Federal Building and a Vehicle Maintenance Facility.

Affordable Basement Repairs...as easy as 1,2,3

"Today's basement repairs don't have to cost a homeowner an arm and a leg. Fact is basement repairs can be very affordable, even in today's economy." states Calvin Lee, owner of AquaGuard, LLC.

Do it yourself, sometimes!

When a potential client calls the AquaGuard office, there is a series of questions asked to see if the remedy to their basement problem is something the homeowner can do. Usually through the interview it can be determined whether or not the home owner really needs professional help. If so, an appointment will be set up to assess the basement and determine a plan of action. All estimates are FREE to the homeowner and a written estimate can either be mailed, emailed or faxed to a potential client. There are three major buckets of business for basement repairs that is the focus of AquaGuard, LLC; waterproofing, stabilization of bowed and cracked walls and indoor air quality solutions.

First, is waterproofing.

Waterproofing is always a scary problem for homeowners. Why? Misconceptions of the cost and the mess of repairs! The average homeowner doesn't realize there is a solution to their wet or damp basement which can be installed in ONE day, no digging or trenching and is a permanent solution with a 20 year transferable warranty. Sometimes at a considerably less amount then traditional methods.

Second, is stabilization of basement walls.

Traditionally, when a basement wall was bowing or cracking a homeowner had to either replace it or stabilize the wall with unsightly steel beams. Both methods could be costly and with the steel beams, obtrusive. AquaGuard uses a state of the art technology, developed for military use - Carbon fiber w/Kevlar. When installed the carbon fiber allows the homeowner a peace of mind to know their wall is stable, with a manufactures lifetime warranty on the wall or walls of repair.

Third, is indoor air quality solutions.

With more and more people concerned about indoor air, AquaGuard has some wonderful products to clean and/or purify a home's air supply. These products compliment the above services by removing stale indoor air and moisture that can allow mold and mildew to stray throughout the house.

While AquaGuard's main focus is on waterproofing, stabilization of basement walls and indoor air quality solutions, by no means does the company limit itself to just those services. If you have a basement need feel free to contact our office at 1-800-347-5322 and talk to our helpful personnel or check out our website www.aquaguardohio.com.

Mansfield was nicknamed "Little Chicago" from 1900 to the 1950s because it was what you called a "wide open town" where the railroad depot was within walking distance of forty-seven saloons and a stroll up to the business blocks went through a brothel district and a couple dozen bookie joints.

Juneteenth Celebration

June 21 & 22, 2008

Juneteenth Celebration – Richland County Fairgrounds

Juneteenth is the celebration of the end of slavery. This message was delivered by General Granger to the State of Texas, informing the slaves and slave masters that the war was over and that all men, women, and children of color were free. A celebration began on that day, June 19, 1865, in Galveston, Texas and is recognized as a celebrated day among African Americans across America every year. Note, that this was two and a half years after President Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation.

One of General Granger's first orders of business was to read to the people of Texas, General Order Number 3 which began most significantly with the following proclamation. "The people of Texas are informed that in accordance with a Proclamation from the Executive of the United States, all slaves are free. This involves an absolute equality of rights and rights of property between former masters and slaves, and the connection heretofore existing between them becomes that between employer and free laborer."

The Juneteenth Committee in Mansfield has been hosting this event since 1991 in Central Park. This will be our 17th year and we are proud to announce a partnership with the 2008 Bicentennial Celebration. This year the Richland County Fairgrounds will host our local Juneteenth Celebration, starting Saturday, June 21 and ending on Sunday June 22. The event will be open from 9:00am until 9:00pm. For additional information please contact Leonard Dillon at 419-522-1875.

Vendors will be on hand to provide guests with food, artifacts and clothing. Guest speakers, dancers and family gatherings will take place.

Inspirational Thoughts for Everyday

By Ann Bowling

My Love

I love him with all my heart.
He loves me as well, even more than I love him.
He is always on my mind, and on my heart.
I thank him everyday, because he helped me through my darkest times.
Even when I thought I was alone,
He was there beside me, holding me.
He is always there when I need him, and even when I don't.
He surrounds me with his love.
He hears when I call out,
because He is always listening.
He holds me when I cry, and tells me it will be okay.
He has promised me true and never-ending love.
There is nothing I could do to ever repay him for the miracles He has given me.
I will stay with him for eternity,
because eternity, is what he has promised me.
I love him, He is my love, my Savior, my God.

Amanda E Jarvis - ©2004

Jeremiah 31:3

The Lord appeared to us in the past saying
"I have loved you with an everlasting love;
I have drawn you with loving kindness.

MOBLIN PROJECT

Hi My Dear Readers!

Here I am again with the wonderful and magnificent Linux stuff that is my passion. In this era of mobile devices like BlackBerries, iphones, PDA's, Palmtops, handheld computers, and variety of media players (and I know for fact that you my dear readers want one or already have one and are enjoying the comfort of portability) Intel has launched a very big project for mobile devices called "Moblin Project".

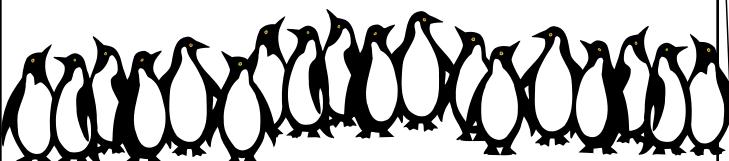

Moblin is an open source project focused on developing software for Mobile Internet Devices (MIDs) to create the mobile Internet experience! Intel launched The Moblin.org site in July 2007 and considerably updated the site in April 2008 with the launch of the Intel "Atom" processor family at the Intel Developer Forum in Shanghai.

The Intel Atom processor family is focused on MIDs, nettops and other market segments where low power consumption and low cost are key considerations.

The Moblin.org web site hosts a variety of tools for developers including a software development kit, source code for all the major components and sample code. Moblin supplies components which are essential for a Mobile Linux operating system, like: Moblin Image Creator (MIC), Kernel, UI Framework, Power Management Policy and a browser.

So be ready my dear readers because very soon, you'll will be surrounding of all those coolest gizmos and gadgets with amazing media capabilities, just right there, from your pocket to the palm of your hand. Entertainment or your office on the go! See you next time.

MANSFIELD

Two centuries old June 2008. A historic milestone in the history of Mansfield. Thirty-two years after our great country was born by the signing of the Declaration of Independence, Mansfield was founded by Jacob Newman, Joseph Larwell and General James Hedges in the Year of our Lord eighteen hundred and eight. They named the new settlement after the United States Surveyor General Jared Mansfield.

The Blockhouse – South Park

The Blockhouse was built in 1812 on what is now the public square in Mansfield, for the defense of civilians against Indian hostilities during that time. After the war, it served as the area's first courthouse and jail and the first church sanctuary until 1816. The restoration of the Blockhouse has become necessary after almost two centuries of weather and deterioration. The restoration work was done by Christian & Son from Burbank, OH who have previously done work for the Smithsonian.

Well it is finally here the Bi-Centennial of Mansfield. The museum is celebrating this historic time with several exhibits highlighting 200 years of history. One section of the exhibit shows early photos and panoramic photo views of Mansfield from different time periods 1858, 1913, 1920 ect. One wall is dedicated to the "Richland" Hotel i.e. Leland, including the original watercolor done by the architect firm of Vernon and Redding in 1926. The museum is still looking for more material in photo, film and artifacts of this hotel and others of Mansfield. The main exhibit is "Mansfield Nitelife and Entertainment" which spans a history from 1840 through 1968. This includes the only surviving racecar from 1961. A full history of all 24 Theaters in Mansfield and on display a history of early movie projectors the type used in our movie houses. early silent films through 1965, all the posters have a connection to Mansfield in that they all were shown here in various theaters around town. One of the other highlights is a tribute to Martha Mansfield who grew up here in our city and became a household name associated with the movie industry in the early 1900's. This city has a bright and glorious past and a great future. Keep on trucking Mansfield "The Trunk Line City" Happy Birthday.

WHAT'S HOLDING YOU BACK?

The Importance of Wearing Seat Belts

Since 2002, the Ohio Department of Public Safety has been working with law enforcement agencies and area Safe Communities groups to increase the number of vehicle occupants wearing seat belts.

Locally, the Richland County Safe Communities Coalition has been participating in annual kickoff events to bring attention to the safety issue while police have been engaged in crackdowns on offenders, including those who fail to have children in proper child car seats. The enhanced enforcement and awareness period this year is from May 19 to June 1.

We need to keep focused on the goal of reducing deaths and injuries on Ohio's roadways each and every day. Wearing your seat belt is the single best thing you can do to protect yourself and your vehicle's occupants in the event of a crash.

The following is a quick glimpse of Ohio Motor Vehicle Crash Data from 2007:

There were 318.5 persons injured every day
One person was injured every 4.5 minutes
Motor vehicle crashes killed 39 children and injured 9,156 children through age 14
Total of 1,162 fatal crashes
Total of 79,586 injury crashes
Total crashes were 328,257
Total deaths were 1,256
2007 Seat Belt Usage was 81.6%

Although seat belt use rates in Richland County have gone from as low as 62% in 2003 to nearly 80% last year, that still means that one out of every five vehicle drivers in not belted.

As you can see from the figures we've got a very long way to go. Traffic safety is a complex problem and we need to constantly focus our energies and resources toward reducing crashes and the resulting injuries and deaths. That challenge continues to grow each year. The Ohio Department of Transportation reports that more than 112 billion vehicle miles of travel took place in the state in 2007 among 7,955,998 licensed drivers.

One death, one injury, one crash is one too many. The Richland County Safe Communities Coalition and its law enforcement partners are working together to keep the seat belt message in the forefront of our traffic safety reminders. Wear your seat belt every time, every trip and make sure everyone in your vehicle is properly restrained. What's holding you back?

Diabetes and Heart Disease

What is the link between diabetes and heart disease?

Diabetes is considered a “risk equivalent” for heart disease, meaning that a person with diabetes who has never had a heart attack has the same risk for having one as someone who doesn’t have diabetes, but has already had a heart attack. The statistics are alarming when looking at all forms of cardiovascular disease (CVD) such as heart attacks, stroke and peripheral vascular disease, and the link to diabetes. People with diabetes are two to four times more likely to have heart disease or a stroke. Two out of three people with diabetes die from CVD. They have a higher risk of congestive heart failure and other complications too.

Diabetes is involved in heart disease in a variety of ways. It causes nerve damage that makes painless heart attacks more likely and harder to diagnose. Diabetes tends to lower the “good” cholesterol, or HDL cholesterol, and raise the “bad” cholesterol, or LDL cholesterol, as well as triglyceride levels. This increases the risk of heart disease and stroke. Since many people with diabetes also have high blood pressure this also increases the risk of developing heart disease and stroke.

Once women experience menopause, their rates of heart disease quickly increase and their risk may become higher than men. Women with diabetes lose this “age advantage,” meaning they are at higher risk for heart disease no matter what their age. It is very important for women with diabetes to know that they are at higher risk for heart disease so they can make lifestyle changes to improve their heart health.

Particularly important lifestyle changes for those with diabetes, include: losing weight, being physically active, controlling cholesterol and blood pressure and stopping smoking. These changes may seem overwhelming to make all at once, however, some small changes can make a difference. If you are overweight, losing even 10-20 pounds can greatly lower your heart disease risk. Cutting down food intake by 500 calories a day can lead to a pound of weight loss per week. Combine that with increased physical activity such as walking and the weight loss may be even greater.

Knowing your cholesterol numbers is an important way to manage your heart disease risk. For those people with diabetes, the goals for cholesterol are: triglycerides lower than 150mg/dl, LDL lower than 100mg/dl, HDL 45mg/dl or higher for men and 55mg/dl or higher for women. If you have diabetes, your blood pressure should be lower than 130/80 mm Hg to reduce your risk for CVD. Controlling blood glucose (sugar) levels will also help in protecting your heart and circulation.

At times it may seem overwhelming to manage diabetes and lifestyle changes that improve health and decrease the chances of heart disease. Just keep in mind that no one is perfect and there will be days when you do a better job than others.

"I Can't Get No Satisfaction"

By Jocelyn Biddle

I recently was told that if one makes $37,000 a year he is in the top 4% of the wealthiest people in the world. Making $45,000 a year would put you in the top 1%. It makes sense why the United States of America is ranked as being one of the top six richest countries in the world. Luxuries are placed around us so frequently that we tend to forget how fortunate we really are. Instead of residing on the thought of how blessed we are, our minds only pursue how we can attain more. It seems America has become a nation full of people being smothered by a cloud of discontentment.

The feeling of discontentment that has been birthed into the lives of countless people has sent many on a downward spiral of unhappiness. We have begun to base our joy on things that were never meant to fulfill us as human beings and are searching relentlessly for anything to satisfy our desires. Jealousy seems to be the emotion most commonly linked with discontentment. It is the driving force which targets what is believed to bring satisfaction. Whether it is jealousy over someone else's success, relationship, or possessions, the sight of things in other people's lives is what constantly offsets our shallow happiness.

Upon traveling to Mexico, jealousy coursed through my selfish veins yet again. I watched children playing in the dirt for hours, laughter filling the air and smiling faces shining. They had nothing, so what could I possibly have been jealous of? Complete contentment. They had it all figured out. Contentment should never be based on what one has.

Being with the orphans of Cambodia proved this point yet again. Without a family and living with the knowledge of being disowned, they held more joy in their eyes than I had ever before witnessed. I could have all the money in the world, but I know that they would still be happier.

From what I've observed, the less people have, usually the happier they are. This is something that runs completely contrary to American thought. Perhaps it is because we are not forced to realize how fragile our lives really are or faced with the reality of what it would be like to have nothing at all. Whatever the reason, we are looking for contentment in the wrong places. It would do us good to learn from those who are truly satisfied in their lives.

"Contentment is natural wealth, luxury is artificial poverty" - Socrates

City of Churches

Mansfield became a city on June 11th, 1808. Before the turn of the century, Mansfield was widely known as “The City of Churches”. The city, as well as the significance of this slogan, grew in the following years.

During the 1920's, this statement truly described downtown Mansfield; church spires could be seen projecting skyward from nearly every block. The downtown churches presented Mansfield with a most inspiring skyline during this time.

Re-live Mansfield's religious history as you tour all or any of the following churches: St. Luke's Lutheran, St. Peter's Catholic Church, Grace Episcopal, First English Lutheran, First United Methodist, St. John's United Church of Christ & The Greek Orthodox Church Fellowship Center.

The 179th Airlift Wing has had different names and designations through the years, but their Ohio Air National Guard base goes back to 1948 when, eager to respond to a federal request for manpower, 145 men were recruited in 3 days to form the first Mansfield unit, then called the 164th Fighter Squadron. A familiar sight in the skies over town are the C-130H "Hercules" cargo planes that have lived here since 1991. This plane, photographed over the city, is named Spirit of Mansfield.
